"With the discussion of the new Draft Laws, of extraordinary political and social scope, a true legislative and participatory exercise was carried out," said Esteban Lazo Hernández, President of the National Assembly and of the Council of State, at the conclusion of the first day of the Seventh Ordinary Period of sessions of the Cuban Parliament, corresponding to its IX Legislature.

Lazo Hernández explained that once again by videoconference, the Deputies of the Cuban Parliament of the country again analyzed the Draft Law of the People's Courts, the Law of the Administrative Process, the Law of the Process Code and the Law of the Criminal Process.

The 31 Guantanamo deputies to the Cuban Parliament participated in the analysis of the new Draft Laws, 21 of them from the most eastern and mountainous territory of the country, together with Emilio Matos Mosqueda, Governor of the province.

In the opinion of Rubén Remigio Ferro, President of the Supreme Court, who was in charge of presenting the draft laws, "with their entry into force our socialist Constitution and the criminal guarantee rights for all citizens are endorsed."

For his part, Deputy Yusuam Palacios Ortega pointed out "that these projects are signs of greater social justice, typical of the social project that we perfect and defend."
